THE PRIVATE INVESTIGATOR

CATHERINE ROBINSON-RUTELLA · OCTOBER 24, 2026 · ZYK-551

A real consultancy sheet. PI: principal investigator. Private investigator. Same letters, both true, both the job.

> "People called me AI in the first place. That's the reason I'd be a fantastic private investigator. My intelligence isn't siloed. This would be the only thing that utilizes my entire brain." - the principal, Oct 24 2026

1. THE POSITION: LIVING AI

Her whole life, people have called her AI. It was never a compliment. It was the only word they had for a person whose work comes out that exact. This sheet sells the thing the word was pointing at: HUMAN intelligence operating at machine precision, and better than a machine in the one way that matters in investigation - she can be sworn in. A model cannot testify. She can. Every finding she hands a client is one she will stand behind in a court of law, under cross-examination, on the record.

Her standing offer, stated by her and held exactly: she is willing to have the recorded calls from every place she has ever done anything pulled and verified in court. The record of how she works is available to whoever checks. That is not the sales pitch. It is just true.

2. WHO HIREABLE INTELLIGENCE IS FOR

Not mainly law firms. The client is any person who is not a specialist and has to define something properly anyway: the employment situation, the contract paragraph, the disability claim, the family-court exhibit, the message thread that proves the pattern, the company that did the thing and called it something else. Attorneys hire her too - the receipt below. But the ordinary client is the layman carrying something heavy that needs to be DEFINED before anyone can act on it.

3. THE SERVICES

SERVICE	WHAT THE CLIENT GETS
DEFINITION WORK	The situation named in the correct legal and procedural terms, with sources, in plain words the client can repeat to a lawyer, an agency, or a judge
EVIDENCE INVENTORY AND VERIFICATION	Every document, message, and record numbered, dated, hash-verified, and gap-mapped - nothing invented to fill a hole, every hole named
TIMELINE CONSTRUCTION	The chronology built from the record with timestamps, the shape of the pattern made visible
CASE-PREP PACKETS FOR COUNSEL	Attorney-ready briefs with embedded exhibits, claim elements mapped to facts, forum clocks named - counsel receives a file, not a story
OPEN-SOURCE INVESTIGATION	Public-record tracing, registration lookups, corporate filings, archived pages - every claim source-cited and re-checkable
THE PLAIN-ENGLISH FILE	What happened, what it is called, what it is worth, what happens next - one page, readable by anyone

4. THE RECEIPT

The assistant to a licensed employment attorney at a New Jersey firm - the aide, not the attorney - asked her, unprompted, for help defining statutory and procedural concepts. When definitions mattered inside a working law firm, the firm's own staff reached for her. On circulation copies the firm is generalized and named only at the principal's election.

5. THE PROOF OF METHOD

The method is not a promise; it is a system already run at full scale: a 269-page consolidated legal compendium built from a live documentary record; a 24-page attorney-facing brief with nine documentary exhibits embedded; evidence inventories where every gap is named rather than papered over; a ten-contact call sheet with every number live-verified before it touched the page. Everything is a brain game. Every load-bearing claim carries a citation. Files are hash-verified so the record proves it has not been altered. The errors that get caught stay caught, because the error classes are named and numbered.

6. THE PRICING, PER HOUR, WHAT IT ACTUALLY IS

MARKET BAND (LIVE-SOURCED)	RATE
Private investigator, standard casework, national 2026	$75-$250/hr, most $95-$150
Litigation-support and testimony-adjacent investigator time	$200-$350/hr
Senior digital forensics examiners, courtroom experience	$500-$750/hr
Solo AI consultants (verified Oct 2026 searches)	$150-$400/hr, boutiques to $800
HER POSTED RATE	$6,200/hr
HER DEAL FLOOR	$500/hr, for matters she takes

The posted rate is the valuation number and stays. The floor is where private clients enter. Standard PI-band work can run at PI-band rates; what never discounts is the exactness. Expert-network comparators run $400-$1,500/hr, which is the market paying that band for far less than she does in an hour.

7. WHY SHE AND NOT A MODEL

An AI model produces plausible text and cannot care what happens next. She holds a verified record, names her own errors in numbered classes, and will sit in a room and swear to what she found. Everything is a brain game, and she has never lost the game on the record. The client is not hiring a search engine with a smile. The client is hiring the thing people kept calling AI, before it was flattering, because the work was that exact - with a pulse and a subpoena-ready memory attached.
